

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From March 27 to 30, 2026, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,228 U.S. likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error associated with the sample size is ± 3 percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. Partisanship reflected in tabulations is based on self-identified party affiliation, not partisan registration. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,228 unless otherwise specified.

[2] The first two weeks of the war in Iran produced five million tonnes of carbon emissions — more than some countries produce in an entire year. Much of these emissions came from destroyed buildings, burning fuel facilities, and military attacks.

Does hearing this make your view of the Trump administration's decision to take U.S. military action against Iran better or worse, or does it not change your view?
