NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

Surrogacy is the process in which a woman carries a pregnancy for another person or couple. Some argue that allowing women to receive compensation for serving as a surrogate is exploitative and should be banned. Others argue that, as long as there are laws in place to protect the rights and health of the surrogate, women should not be restricted from serving as a surrogate and receiving compensation. Which of those views is closest to your own?

Currently, New York State offers public home care services for seniors and people with disabilities whose incomes are less than $30 thousand per year. Some New York State lawmakers are considering spending $5 billion per year to expand home care services to all New Yorkers. The program would be funded by a 1% payroll tax on all workers. Supporters of the proposal say that home care is the best and most cost-effective way to meet the needs of seniors and people with disabilities. They claim that the income limit forces many people with disabilities to curtail their work effort to avoid losing the benefits they need. Opponents say that New Yorkers already pay too much tax and cannot afford an increase. They claim that the public should not be responsible for providing home care to people with enough money to afford it on their own or to people who have relatives who can care for them. Would you support or oppose this proposal?
