

From February 12 to February 15, 2021, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1169 likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ±3 percentage points.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

[1] Some lawmakers in Congress are proposing creating a permanent child allowance that provides $4,200 per year for every child up to the age of 6, as well as $3,000 per year for every child age 6 to 17. Under this plan, it starts to shrink for individuals who make more than $200,000 annually, as well as $400,000 for joint filers.

This would be paid for by cutting some existing welfare programs and modifying others.

As a country we should be doing more to reduce child poverty, making sure kids, for example, have enough food to eat. This means getting money to families who need it and if some parents end up working fewer hours that's okay	46	67	36	29	50	42	56	40	46	46	61	52	43
Our focus should be on building self sufficient families and it's important that parents are working to provide for their children. If we give poor families too much money they'll come to depend on the government.	47	25	59	63	41	53	35	54	45	49	18	42	52

Lawmakers are right to try to do this because this country should do more to reduce child poverty, as well as making it easier to start and raise a family.	48	68	41	32	48	49	60	41	47	51	56	54	46
Lawmakers are wrong to do this because some families may receive more in benefits than they pay in taxes and this creates dependency.	39	20	49	54	38	42	27	47	40	39	18	34	43

If this program is created, how concerned or not concerned would you be that some single mothers would choose to slightly reduce the number of hours they work for a wage each week?
