

From February 23 to February 25, 2021, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1182 likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ±3 percentage points.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

[1] As part of the pandemic relief package, some lawmakers in Congress are proposing to include aid for state and local governments facing financial hardship as a result of the recession. Do you support or oppose this?

[15] There is currently a debate in Congress over whether we should pass state and local aid using deficit spending.

Supporters of state and local governments aid say it is worth doing so because this will help speed up our overall economic recovery and support essential workers fighting COVID-19.

Opponents of providing aid to state and local governments say it is not worth it because it adds to the national deficit.

When thinking about this debate what comes closer to your view?
