

From February 3 to February 4, 2021, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1215 likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ±3 percentage points.

N=1215 unless otherwise specified. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

[1] Some lawmakers in Congress are proposing new legislation to strengthen labor laws. This proposal would give workers more power during disputes at work, add penalties for companies that retaliate against workers who try to form a union, give more workers currently classified as contractors in the gig economy (like Uber drivers) the right to organize and form unions, and eliminate right-to-work laws which allow employees to enjoy the benefits of a union contract without contributing to the costs.
