

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From November 16 to 17, 2020, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,075 likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ± 3 percentage points.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

[2] Some lawmakers in Congress are proposing providing all 3- and 4-year-olds access to free, high-quality pre-kindergarten.

When thinking about this, which statement comes closer to your view, even if neither is exactly right?

We should not do this. Many parents choose to stay at home with their kids and raise them full-time before the kids are old enough to go to school. These parents shouldn't pay for a service that they're not using.	36	16	41	54
We should provide universal pre-k because it will lay a strong foundation for children's education, as students who enter kindergarten school-ready are less likely to repeat a grade and are more likely to graduate from high school.	56	77	50	39
