

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From October 8 to 17, 2022, Data for Progress, in collaboration with Courier Newsroom, conducted a survey of 2,517 voters in Pennsylvania, including an oversample of undecided voters, using SMS respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative by age, gender, education, race, geography, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ± 2 percentage points.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=2,517 unless otherwise specified.

[2] Currently, abortions in Pennsylvania are legal up to the 24th week of pregnancy.

Recently, some candidates for statewide offices in the state have said that they would seek to pass more restrictive abortion laws, such as banning abortion after 6 weeks.

When thinking about this, which statement comes closer to your view even if neither is exactly right?

[5] In the summer of 2022, some lawmakers in the state legislature voted in favor of a constitutional amendment that would specify that Pennsylvania's Constitution does not guarantee the right to have an abortion.

If the state House and Senate pass this amendment a second time in the 2023 legislative session, then it would appear on voters' ballots in a 2023 election.

How much have you read or heard about this amendment?
