[1] In late December, lawmakers passed the No Surprises Act, which bans unexpected medical bills for out-of-network emergency services. This means that health care providers cannot give patients a bill that is higher than the in-network cost for emergency care, even if the hospital or emergency room the patient goes to is out-of-network. Do you support or oppose the No Surprises Act?	Strongly support	61%	74%	59%	47%

[2] When thinking about the No Surprises Act, which comes closest to your view, even if neither is exactly correct?	The No Surprises Act protects people from having to pay surprise and expensive medical bills. The legislation is the right step towards standardizing rates for medical procedures to lower prices and the cost of health insurance coverage for patients. ..	80%	87%	80%	71%
	The No Surprises Act unfairly decreases the power of health care providers to negotiate the costs of treatment. Insurance companies can now underpay hospitals and providers for their services, which will ultimately hurt patients by reducing their access to care.	10	6	9	16
