

From April 29 to May 8, 2025, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 592 Latine registered voters in New Jersey using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of Latine registered voters by age, gender, education, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English and Spanish. The margin of error associated with the sample size is  $\pm 4$  percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. Partisanship reflected in tabulations is based on self-identified party affiliation, not partisan registration. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=592 unless otherwise specified.

[31] Lately, there has been debate about whether immigration and the arrival of new migrants to the state is making life harder for working people.

When thinking about this, which of the following statements comes closer to your view, even if neither is exactly right?

Response	Topline	Democrat	Independent / Third party	Republican	Female	Male	Under 45	45+	No College	College
Too many politicians try to divide us by race or background to distract from the real issue: an unfair economy where the wealthy get tax breaks while working people fall behind. By making corporations and the ultra-wealthy pay their fair share, we can build an economy that works for everyone	63	72	66	45	64	62	67	59	60	70
The real reason working people are struggling is that an increasing number of new arrivals are overwhelming the system and putting pressure on jobs, housing, and public services. We need policies that acknowledge this issue and put the needs of New Jersey residents first	34	26	30	53	32	37	30	39	37	28
