

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From May 30 to June 1, 2025, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,232 U.S. likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, income, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error associated with the sample size is ±3 percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. Partisanship reflected in tabulations is based on self-identified party affiliation, not partisan registration. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

An oversample of Asian respondents was conducted to achieve minimum 120 interviews and weighted to ensure proportional representation of likely voters.

A "persuadable congressional voter" is defined as a voter who is either undecided on a generic congressional ballot or self-reports voting for candidates of both parties about evenly.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 45 (<45) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<45 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,232 unless otherwise specified.

[33] Imagine you are voting for a member of Congress.

The Democrat wants to:

- Defend the constitution and uphold rule of law
- Strengthen our national security and defense
- Promote healthy and safe communities
- Encourage economic growth and opportunity

The Republican wants to:

- Promote traditional social values
- Improve border security and immigration control
- Limit taxes, regulation, and the size of government
- Prioritize American jobs and manufacturing

Knowing this, if the election for U.S. Congress in your district was held today, which one of the following candidates are you most likely to vote for? (N=636) (SPLIT A)
