

From March 6 to 9, 2026, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,242 U.S. likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error associated with the sample size is ±3 percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. Partisanship reflected in tabulations is based on self-identified party affiliation, not partisan registration. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,242 unless otherwise specified.

[1] Beginning in April last year, President Trump implemented new tariffs on most goods imported into the U.S. The federal government can exempt (make exceptions for) individual products from these tariffs on a case-by-case basis.

By December last year, the Trump administration had made 51% of all goods exempt from the tariffs. Some people are concerned that the tariff exemption process gives businesses the opportunity to lobby the Trump administration for preferential treatment.

How much do you trust the Trump administration, if at all, to prevent corruption in the tariff exemption process?
